You are writing a paper and want to use some numbers to support your ideas. But you fail to find any and plan to make up some by yourself. Please think twice about doing that. You may be on the way to academic dishonesty(学术作假).

German publishing house Springer Nature once took back 107 papers(论文) because of academic dishonesty. All of them were from Chinese writers. The reason is because the papers gave fake(伪造的) peer reviews(同行评价).

In fact, academic dishonesty can be one of many things. It includes fabrication(捏造) by using fake data or information, and plagiarism(抄袭), which is when another person's work is used directly without quotes(引用).

The punishment for academic dishonesty in the West is usually very serious. Most people know that from President Xi Jinping called for joint efforts to build the Belt and Road into a road for peace, prosperity(繁荣), openness(开放), innovation(创新) and civilization(文明) on Sunday at the opening ceremony of the two-day Belt and Road Forum for International Cooperation(一带一路国际合作论坛), May 14th, 2017 in Beijing. More than 1,500 people across the world were attending the forum.

A solid first step has been taken in pursuing the Belt and Road Initiative. Great successes were expected to achieve in the following areas:

1. Road for peace

We should develop a new type of “win-win” international cooperation and all countries should respect each other's sovereignty(主权), dignity and territorial integrity(领土完整), each other's development paths and social systems.

2. Road of prosperity

We should focus on setting up new major projects to catch every new development opportunities and maintain dynamic growth.

3. Road of opening up

We should build an open cooperation platform to build an open world economy which is beneficial to all wonderful world of Chinese food. And I haven't seen any local restaurants serving prawn crackers(虾片) or sweet and sour pork, like the "Chinese" ones in Australia!

Perhaps my most memorable meal so far was at a traditional hot pot restaurant(火锅店). I have eaten plenty of hot pot before, but this one was really, really hot. My friends watched with interest as I tried duck blood(鸭血), duck neck and duck intestines(肠). I will try anything once, so I was happy to give it a go. I don't think I'll be trying duck blood or intestines again, though!

Walking through Wangfujing's night market was another interesting experience. We tried scorpion(蝎子) on a stick, sea urchin(海胆), eel(鳗鱼) and many other crazy-looking animals. One thing I have noticed in China is that people love to eat everything on sticks!

But the thing I like most about Chinese food is that you don't have to search very hard to find it. Men and women sell different things on every corner, and there are so many restaurants in Beijing.

It's impossible to go hungry in China. The only question is, what should I try next?

42. According to the first two paragraphs, we learn that the writer _____
- A. has never eaten Chinese food before coming to China.
 - B. thinks Chinese food in Australia is the same as that in China.
 - C. finds there are many different kinds of Chinese food actually.
 - D. finds Chinese food in Australia tastes better than that in China.
43. After eating a meal at the traditional hot pot restaurant, the writer thought _____
- A. the hot pot was very different.
 - B. duck was a must for a hot pot.
 - C. duck blood and duck intestines were delicious.
 - D. he would eat duck blood or intestines again.
44. What did the writer learn from his experience at Wangfujing's night market?
- A. It wasn't interesting at all.
 - B. Scorpion tasted better than sea urchin.
 - C. Crazy-looking animals cannot be eaten.
 - D. Chinese people like to cook food on sticks.
45. What does the last sentence in the story mean?

- A. It is difficult to find a good Chinese restaurant.
- B. The writer always goes hungry in China.
- C. The writer doesn't like Chinese food.
- D. There are lots of Chinese food choices.

It was the beginning of a new term. As 46 new teacher in that school, I don't know any of the students. A little girl was standing at the gate of the classroom. She looked very shy.

I walked up to her and asked why she stood there. But she said nothing. Then a boy shouted, "She is from Grade Four, the 47 (bad) student in her grade". I looked at the little girl. She didn't seem to be the smart kind. I understood why her teacher asked 48 (she) to stay in Grade Three. I took her hand and 49 (lead) her into the classroom. "Sit here. Now you are my student and I'm your teacher," I said. She still said nothing, but 50 (sudden) began to cry.

I later learnt that her parents died in a car accident. She became sad and didn't like talking to others after that.

She learnt very slowly. I gave her respect and never looked down 51 her as I know everybody deserves (值得) respect. I helped her after school, and she eagerly looked forward to 52 (make) progress since then. As time went by, she was not as shy as before. At the end of the term, she seemed to have 53 (forget) all her sadness. She was not among the best students when she left that school, but at least, she was not that shy 54 sad little girl any more.

In the following years, she would send me a card on each Thanksgiving Day. Three days ago, I received an 55 (invite) to her wedding. And now, I am at her wedding, and she is smiling brightly.
